

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY REMARKS TO CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF WORKS.

THE following list has been compiled expressly for Messrs A. and C. Black's edition of Lord Brougham's works. Publications attributed to Lord Brougham, but about which there is any doubt, have not been included. Though he wrote a great deal, he yet had the credit of writing much that he never saw. Articles in the Penny Cyclopaedia have been attributed to him : I am assured by the Editor, Mr George Long, that he never wrote a line for that work. Most of his publications, and especially his early pamphlets, produced numerous answers, replies, and rejoinders, frequently from men of high position, but more frequently from anonymous disputants. No information on this point is to be found in his "Life and Times."

For the sake of general readers, I may explain that every title is given in full, except where marks of abbreviation appear. Publishers' names and addresses have almost invariably been abbreviated, but sufficient is retained to show that all Lord Brougham's productions have emanated from publishing houses bearing the highest reputation. When a work has been published anonymously, I have indicated that fact by placing a small asterisk (*) at the beginning of the title ; if under a pseudonym, a small line (-). The figures occurring immediately after the size of each book indicate the number of pages.

I have to make my usual acknowledgment, that without the Library of the British Museum, and its magnificent Catalogue, both so freely open to the use of readers, I could not have compiled this list. I have also had access to the admirably conducted Library of the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn, which, besides an extensive collection of legal and historical pamphlets well catalogued, contains several volumes of the original manuscript of Lord Brougham's judgments.

LORD BROUGHAM'S PUBLICATIONS.

Lord Brougham's first appearance in print appears to have been in the :—

1. Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London, 1796, 1797, and 1798, 4to, in which was printed :—

Experiments and observations on the inflection, reflection, and colours of light, by Henry Brougham, jun., esq. Communicated by Sir Charles Blagden, Knt. Sec. R.S. Read Jan. 28, 1796, vol. 86, pp. 227 to 277, with a table. Also printed in Nicholson's Journal, 1797, vol. 1, p. 551.

This was written when Lord Brougham was only seventeen years of age

Further experiments and observations on the affections and properties of light; by—read June 15, 1797, vol. 87, pp. 352 to 385, with a table. Also printed in Nicholson's Journal, 1799, vol. 2, p. 147.

General theorems chiefly porisms in the higher geometry; by—read May 24, 1798, vol. 88, pp. 378 to 396, with a table.

This paper begins :—"The following are a few propositions that have occurred to me in the course of a considerable degree of attention which I have happened to bestow upon that interesting, though difficult branch of mathematics; the greater part refer to hyperbola, as related to a variety of other curves. Almost the whole are of that kind called porisms."

2. The Edinburgh Review.

Lord Brougham was one of the founders of this world renowned quarterly, and a constant contributor on its commencement in 1802, and for many years after.

Some account of his connection with it will be found in his "Life and Times," and at page 258 of the first volume, he enumerates the articles contributed by him to the first four numbers; in the first twenty numbers he wrote eighty of the 369 articles. (See No. 109 in this list).

3. An enquiry into the colonial policy of the European powers; in two volumes, by Henry Brougham, jun. esq. F.R.S. Edinburgh, printed by D. Willison, Craig's Close, for E. Balfour, Manners and Miller, and Archibald Constable, Edinburgh, and T. N. Longman and O. Rees, London, 1803, 8o, 4 + 588 pages, volume 2, 6 + 588, including the index.

In his "Life and Times" (vol. 1, 255) he says "hard-worked" as he then (1802) was with his "Colonial Policy." The following quotation from the same volume will perhaps account for no article having appeared in the Edinburgh Review on this treatise:—"The works published by its conductors were either not reviewed at all (as was the case with my own work on Colonial Policy)," p. 263. It is mentioned in the October number, p. 205, for 1804. The author advocates colonial establishments.

"Brougham's Colonial Policy, manifestly the launcher, and a capital one too, of a shrewd man of the world," Life of Wilberforce, vol. III. 194; see also the Gentleman's Magazine of Sept. 1840, p. 232.

4. Examination of the justice, legality, and policy of the new system of commercial regulations, second edition, with appendix, 1803.

I have never seen this, I find the title in Thorpe's catalogue for 1842, No 840, where it is under Lord Brougham's name.

5. *A concise statement of the question regarding the abolition of the slave trade. Lond. Hatchard, 1804, 8o, 108 pages.

Three editions of this anonymous pamphlet were issued the same year, and it was reviewed in the Edinburgh for July 1804.

6. *Thoughts suggested by lord Lauderdale's observations upon the Edinburgh Review. Lond. printed for Longman, 1805, 8o, 93.

This anonymous pamphlet was in reply to the observations by the Earl of Lauderdale, on the review [by Henry Brougham] of his Inquiry into the nature and origin of the public wealth, published in the 8th number of the Edinburgh Review, 1804. Referring to this review in the Edinburgh, for July 1804, p. 343, Lord Jeffrey says that he suppressed and altered a few sentences in the beginning, so that there might be no pretext for complaining of anything personal. Life and Times of Lord Brougham, I. 266.

7. *An enquiry into the state of the nation at the commencement of the present administration [motto], fourth edition, with additions. Lond., printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees, and Orme, Paternoster row, and J. Ridgway, Piccadilly, 1806, price 5s. 8o, 218, xviii.

Six editions appeared the same year, all anonymous. It was reviewed in the Edinburgh for April, and see Notes and Queries, fourth series, VIII. 523.

8. The speech of Henry Brougham, esq. before the house of Commons...april 1st 1808, in support of the petitions from London, Liverpool, and Manchester, against the orders in Council; taken in short-hand by Mr A. Fraser. Lond. Ridgway, 1808, 8o, ix. 84, 2s. 6d.

9. Speeches of Henry Brougham, esq. delivered before a committee of the honorable house of Commons, in opposition to a bill for incorporating certain persons by the name of the gas light and coke company (Strahan and Preston, Printers Street. London 1809), fol. pp. 31.

Printed by the opposers of the bill, because the friends of it had printed the speeches in support.

10. A letter on reform—only a limited number printed, 1811?

I have never seen a copy of this letter; it is no doubt the same piece as Lowndes (Bib. Man.) mentions as "a treatise on reform." Lord Brougham (Life and Times, II. 42) refers to it when writing to Dr Shepherd on the 25th August 1812; he says, "I send by this post a letter to Mr Roscoe to be published, if necessary or advisable, according to the news [of peace or war with America]...I sincerely hope it may be unnecessary." William Roscoe's letter in reply was reviewed by Lord Brougham in the Edinburgh, July 1812, and there were several other pamphlets on the subject, but the limited space at my disposal forbids enumeration here, as will frequently be the case in this list, but I may not again mention the omissions. "The history of these publications is, so far as we can recollect, shortly the following:—Mr Brougham having penned a treatise on reform, in the shape of a letter, of which he printed a limited number of copies for the use of his friends, some accident guided this production into the pages of a periodical work; but the farther circulation of it was, on the complaint of the writer, stayed by the authority of the court of Chancery. Mr Roscoe, however, formed one of the narrow circle originally favoured with a perusal of the letter; and Mr Roscoe thought proper to answer it in a tract...Mr Roscoe was publicly answered by Mr Merritt, whose answer forthwith occasioned a rejoinder...With the treatise of Mr Brougham we have no concern, for it is not regularly before the tribunal of the public. Of that of Mr Merritt we can say nothing, for it has not chanced to fall within our view." Quarterly Review, June 1812, p. 266.

11. Speech of Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., in the house of Commons, on tuesday the 16th of June 1812, upon the present state of commerce and manufacture, from a report taken in short hand. Lond. Longman and Ridgway, 1812, 8o, 2s. 6d.

I have not seen this, nor the following.

12. Speech to his friends assembled at Liverpool, oct. 16, 1812. 8vo.

I find this title in:—a Biographical Dictionary of the living authors of Great Britain, 1816.

I may here mention that I have been unable to find the "letter" and "evidence" referred to in the next paragraph, probably they were only printed in the newspapers.

It appears that on the occasion of his marriage, which had taken place quietly some months before, several of the papers commented on it. The Town and Country Magazine for Sept. 1838 further made it the occasion for republishing the facts as to the difference between Lord Brougham and Mr M^r Kerrell in 1812, and printing Lord Brougham's letter to Mr M^r Kerrell, who, it says, published the evidence, &c.

13. *An appeal to the Allies and the English nation in behalf of Poland. Lond. Harding, 1814, 8o, 6d.

Published anonymously, but by Lord Brougham, Prince Czartoryski, and Count Sierakowski.

14. Speech of Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., on tuesday the 9th of April 1816, in the committee of the whole house upon the state of the agricultural distresses. Lond. printed for Longman, 1816, 8o, 61, 2s. 6d.

15. The speech of Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., in the house of Commons, march 13th, 1817, on the state of the nation. Lond. printed for Ridgways, 1817, 8o, 82; another edition, Edin. 1817, 8o, 1s.

At the end is a list of the minority who voted for Mr Brougham's motion.

16. A letter to Sir Samuel Romilly, M.P., from Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., F.R.S., upon the abuse of charities. Lond. Longmans, 1818, 8o, about four sheets.

This went through eleven editions the same year. The ninth being in The Pamphleteer.

16-A. Appendix to Mr Brougham's letter, containing minutes of evidence taken before the education committee. Lond. Longman and Edin., 1818, 8o, 104.

This letter caused much controversy.

17. The speech of Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., in the house of Commons, may 8th, 1818, on the education of the poor, and charitable abuses. Lond. Ridgway, 1818, 8o, 49.

18. The speech of Henry Brougham, esq. on the education of the poor, spoken in the house of Commons, June 29th, 1820, vol. 16, No. 32 of the Pamphleteer. Lond. 1820, 8o, 29.

19. Mr Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, Oct. 3d and 4th, 1820. Speeches of Mr Brougham, Mr Denman and Dr Lushington, containing the defence of...the Queen, each speech may be had separate. Lond. for T. Masters, 1820, 8o.

Each part has a separate title-page and pagination.

"It is well known that no man has gone beyond Lord Brougham in the patient finish of particular passages of his speeches; he has himself recorded that the ultimate peroration on Queen Caroline's case was written ten times over before he thought it worthy of the occasion; and we have heard from his lips within these last few years several outpourings on the Whigs, which no doubt had been concocted with equal and more delightful elaboration." [J. Wilson Crocker in] The Quarterly Review for June 1845, p. 62.

20. *Substance of the argument before the privy council, in support of the Queen consort's right to be crowned; published by her majesty's command. Lond. Longman, 1821, 8o, 42.

21. Trial of John Ambrose Williams for a libel on the clergy, contained in the Durham Chronicle of Aug. 18, 1821, tried at...Durham...Aug. 6, 1822, before Mr Baron Wood and a special jury, to which is prefixed a report of the preliminary proceedings in the Court of King's Bench, London. Durham, printed [and edited] by J. A. Williams; published by Ridgway, Lond., &c., 1822, 8o, 57.

Third edition. Durham, printed at the Durham Chronicle office, 1831.

Mr Williams' preliminary address is left out of the third edition.

This speech is selected by the Law Magazine (1829, II. 102) as a specimen of forensic eloquence. "A meagre abstract is frequently all we are able to procure of the most admired pleadings. Luckily the case before us forms an exception. Not only was a reporter of high reputation employed, but Mr Brougham lent his aid in correcting; and so fastidiously did he polish his production for the press, that, in the judgment of many, it has been injured by an excess of care. Our main reason, however, for selecting it, is (what we hope it is no culpable breach of confidence to mention) Mr Brougham's having oncesaid at Mr M. A. Taylor's table, that he never made a speech either in parliament or at the bar so completely to his own satisfaction as that in defence of Ambrose Williams. The speech, however, is little known, except in Durham and the immediate neighbourhood: the copies are scarce, and...we shall quote very largely."

"Were I asked to point out to you the finest specimen of Lord Brougham's mind as an orator, and which would at the same time display most vividly its originality and power, I should not hesitate to name his defence of Ambrose Williams for a libel on the clergy of Durham. Its perusal always touches me like martial music; and I know some of those who heard it delivered, and who describe the effect it produced upon the auditory as more resembling the shock attendant on a convulsion of the elements, than the work of a human being in a wig and gown." A Career in the Commons, by W. H. Harle, 1850, p. 44.

This speech brought forth:—"A letter to Henry Brougham...upon his Durham speech, and the three articles in the last Edin. Review upon the subject of the clergy. Lond. C. and J. Rivington, 1823, 8o, 104, two editions, dated from Lincoln's Inn, Feb. 10, 1823. "The Durham speech, and the three articles above alluded to, having excited much attention, we are desirous of calling the notice of the public "to the present able, manly, and judicious pamphlet." Gent. Mag., 1823, April, 341.

22. Inaugural discourse of:—on being installed Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow, april 6, 1825. Glasgow. University Press, 1825, 8o, 51.

Translated into German, and published at Jena, 1829.

23. Practical observations upon the education of the people, addressed to the working classes and their employers, by Henry Brougham, esq. M.P., F.R.S. Lond. Longmans, 1825, 8o, 2 + 33:—twenty editions the same year. It is dedicated to George Birkbeck, M.D., F.R.S., president of the London Mechanic's Institution.

Lord Brougham first mooted the subject in the Edinburgh Review, Oct. 1824. No. 81, art. v., afterwards noticed in No. 82, art. xii., in which notice the reviewer says, the most valuable part of the pamphlet appeared in their pages last October. The above work was translated into German by K. F. Klöden, and published at Berlin in 1827. Mr Baines says that the establishment of Mechanic's Institutes may be ascribed to this work. Life of E. Baines, 1851, p. 130.

24. Report of the speeches delivered in the Assembly Rooms, Edinburgh, at the dinner given in honour of Henry Brougham, esq., M.P., together with Mr Brougham's address to the students at his installation to the office of Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow. Edin. A. Stewart, 1825, 2s. 8o, 46.

A German translation by J. H. Rieken; published at Leipzig in 1833

25.* Objects, advantages, and pleasures of science, extracted from the preliminary treatise of the Library of useful knowledge. No. liv. of vol. 27 of the Pamphleteer. Lond. 1826, 8o, 11.

26. Present state of the law: the speech of Henry Brougham, esq., M.P. in the house of Commons, on thursday, feby. 7th, 1828, on his motion that an humble address be presented to his Majesty, praying that he will graciously be pleased to issue a commission for inquiring into the defects occasioned by time and otherwise in the laws of this realm, and into the measures necessary for removing the same. Lond. H. Colburn, 1828, 8o, xii. 127. This edition has a contents and index. There were three editions the same year. The editors state that it was revised by lord Brougham. Dedicated to the Marquess of Cleveland. Also published in the Pamphleteer for 1828, vol. 29, p. 58.

A speech on, &c. verbatim from "The Times" newspaper. Knight and Lacey, 1828. The fourth edition the same year has a portrait. Reviewed in the Westminster Review, XI. 447, and the orator's opinions contrasted with Bentham's.

"I had the pleasure of performing an acceptable service for Mr Brougham. He had requested me to take notes of a speech he was about to make in the House of Commons on the subject of reforms in the Courts of Common Law. The object of this arrangement was to produce a volume, that should stand as a permanent record of the comprehensive views of the Law Reformer, upon those abuses which were felt by every man who was constrained to seek for justice in the courts of King's Bench, &c. The magnitude of the details was such as to deter any man from approaching them for legislative consideration, except the one man who could grasp them all, marshal them in due order, and bind the whole together by the power of philosophic generalization. My business would be to compare all the reports of the daily papers, to add my own notes, to introduce documents, and to carry the book through the press after the orator had examined this version of his great effort. On the afternoon of the 7th of February I am waiting the arrival of Mr Brougham in the lobby of the house of Commons. He soon arrives in company with Mr Serjeant Wilde. A little delay ensues before the Speaker sends the order for our admission under the gallery. Mr Serjeant Wilde and I sat together for six hours listening to this extraordinary display of mental and physical energy;—the orator never wearied, the listeners never wearying." C. Knight. Life ii. 69.

27. The speech of Henry Brougham, esq. as delivered in the house of Commons, on thursday, feb. 7, 1828, on his motion touching the state of the law in this country, and its administration in the courts of justice, with a view to such reforms in the same as time may have rendered necessary and experience may have shewn to be expedient. London. W. Benning, Fleet Street, 1828, 8o, 72.

Knight and Lacey also published editions of this speech.

For. "A discourse of natural theology, 1828," see the 3rd edit. 1835, No. 35.

28. Corrected report of the speech of Mr Brougham in the house of Commons, may 18th, 1830, on Colonial Slavery. Lond. Ridgway, 1830, 8o, 34.

29. Reform : the speech delivered in the house of Peers on thursday, dec. 2, 1830, by Henry baron Brougham and Vaux, lord high Chancellor of Great Britain, upon the introduction of his Bill to reform the existing legal abuses of the Country. London, printed for F. G. Harding [1830]. 1s. 80, 40.

Two editions the same year.

30. The speech of lord Brougham on reform in the court of Chancery, delivered in the house of Lords, on tuesday, feb. 22d, 1831, with a portrait and autograph. Lond. published by M. Stevens and Sons, 1831, 80, 40.

Another edition :—

—Lord Brougham's speech on reform in Chancery...Lond. John Knight, 1831, 80, 24.

This is signed "Radical," and has a portrait of Lord Brougham.

31. The Lord Chancellor's speech on parliamentary reform in the house of Lords, oct. 7th, 1831. Lond. James Ridgway, 1831. 1s. 6d, 80, 100.

Effingham Wilson also published this speech, and his print of it went through twelve editions the same year; other publishers also printed editions. The "Times" said, "The magnificent speech of Lord Brougham in support of the bill has eclipsed every effort of oratory made within the walls of Parliament in the memory of the living generation....It was a noble, a prodigious specimen of the power of human intellect."

The speech was translated into German.

32. Reports of cases argued and determined in the High Court of Chancery, by J. Russell and J. W. Mylne.

Lord Brougham's judgments, as reported in the above reports are reviewed in the Law Magazine for 1832, vol. VII. 348-378. See also No. 36.

33.* Selections from the speeches and writings of the rt. hon. Henry lord Brougham and Vaux...with a brief memoir of his lordship's life. Lond. J. Ridgway, 1832, 80, vii. 259, 7s. 6d.

The advertisement is dated from Cambridge.

34. Corrected report of the speech of the Lord Chancellor in the house of Lords on July 21, 1834, on moving the second reading of the bill to amend the Poor laws. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1834, 80, 65; two editions the same year.¹

35. A discourse of natural theology, shewing the nature of the evidence and advantages of the study, by lord Brougham, F.R.S. and member of the National Institute of France, third edition. Lond. Charles Knight, 1835, 120, vii. 296.

With a half title as follows:—"Paley's Natural Theology, illustrated. Preliminary discourse by Lord Brougham."

There have been many editions of both these works, in different forms, see Lowndes Bib. Man., by Bohn, under Brougham and Paley. It has been translated into German, and published at Leipzig. Several pamphlets were published about the work, and there have been editions in America.

Paley's Natural Theology, with illustrative notes, &c., by Henry lord Brougham and Sir Charles Bell...with numerous woodcuts, to which are added preliminary observations and notes, by A. Potter, D.D., professor of moral philosophy in Union College; in 2 vols. New York. Harper Brothers, 1842, 12s.

There was another edition in 1845.

36. Select cases decided by lord Brougham in the court of Chancery, in 1833 and 1834, edited from his lordship's mss, by Charles Purton Cooper...vol. 1. Lond. S. Sweet, 1835, 8s. xvi. 521.

The printer's proofs of this work are in the Charles Purton Cooper collection at Lincoln's Inn Library.

The whole of the second volume was in type, but never published. For a review of the editor's preface, and the object in publishing these reports, admitted to be better done in Mylne and Keen's reports. (See No. 32.) See an article in the Law Magazine for February 1836, p. 146, signed "H" (i.e. A. Hayward, now Q.C.?)

37. Speech of Henry lord Brougham on the stamp duties on newspapers in the house of Lords, on monday, the 23d of march 1835. Lond. Charles Knight, 22 Ludgate Hill, 1835, 8s, 16.

38. Speech of Henry lord Brougham in the house of Lords, on thursday, may 23d, 1835, on the education of the people, to which is added a summary of the last education returns to Parliament. London. James Ridgway and Sons, 1835, 8s, 67.

39. The speech of Henry lord Brougham in the house of Lords, on tuesday, may 21, 1835, on the education of the people. Lond., sold by R. Baynes, &c., 1835, price 2d., or 12s. per 100, 8s, 31.

40. Education : speeches and observations of lord Brougham, the marquess of Lansdowne, and lord Lyndhurst, in the house of Lords...june 29...printed by permission of the editors of the Mirror of Parliament. Lond. Darton and Harvey, 1837, 8s, 21.

The preface is signed by William Allen, the treasurer to the committee of the British and Foreign school society.

41. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on monday, june 5, 1837, upon the business of Parliament, with the resolutions adopted by the house for altering the mode of conducting private bills (extracted from the Mirror of Parliament, by permission of the proprietors). Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1837, 8s, iv. 28.

42. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on thursday, june 29, 1837, on the education bill, with the remarks of lords Lansdowne and Lyndhurst, upon public education, to which is annexed a statement of the substance of the bill (from the Mirror of Parliament, by permission of the proprietors). Lond. Simpkin and Marshall, &c., 1837, price 2d., or 12s. per hundred, 8s. 15.

43. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords on imprisonment for debt, tuesday, dec. 5, 1837 (by permission of the proprietors of the Mirror of Parliament). Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1837, 8o, 25.

44. Opinions of lord Brougham on politics, theology, law, science, education, literature, &c., as exhibited in his parliamentary and legal speeches and miscellaneous writings [with a memoir]. Lond. Henry Colburn, 1837, 12o, 60 + 504. 12s.

This work has an index. It was reprinted at Paris in "Baudry's European Library," 1841.

45. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, wednesday, december 30, 1837, on the civil list, or the income and expences of the crown. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o, 38.

46. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, thursday, january 18th, 1838, upon Canada. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o, x. 61.

47. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, monday, jan. 29, 1838, upon the slave trade, with an abstract of the discussion which ensued, printed for the Abolition Committee. London James Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o, vi. 24.

Prefatory address to Richard marquess Wellesley, K.G., dated 30th janry. 1838, and signed Brougham. Lord Brougham sometimes corrected the newspaper reports of his speeches. In the "Life and Times," vol. 2. p. 270, he says he corrected the report of the case respecting legal privilege.

48. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on tuesday, 2d february 1838, on the maltreatment of the North American colonies. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o, preface xvi. speech pp. 37.

49. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on tuesday, the 20th february 1838, for the immediate emancipation of the negro apprentices. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o. v. 50.
Second edition same year. It is also reprinted in No. 111.

50. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, tuesday, march 6, 1838, upon the Eastern Slave trade. Lond. J. Ridgway and Sons, 1838, 8o, v. 65.

Preface addressed to Arthur, duke of Wellington, and signed Brougham.

51. The three speeches of lord Brougham upon Slavery, Negro apprenticeship, and the Slave trade, delivered in the house of Lords, jan. 29th, feb. 20th, and march 6th, 1838. Lond. 1838, 8o.

I have not seen this publication. There is a short notice in the Edin Review, vol. xvii. 198.

52. Letter to the Queen on the state of the monarchy, by a friend of the people. Lond. Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., 1838, 8o. 46.

This immediately brought forth a shower of pamphlets, indignant, derisive, sympathetic, answers, replies, and rejoinders; and amongst them one entitled :-Lord Brougham not the writer of the "letter to the Queen on the state of the monarchy," proved by an examination both of the matter and style of the letter, by an enemy to such friends of the people.

"For just experience tells, in every soil,

That those who think, must govern those that toil."

Lond. Ridgway, 1839. (pseudonymous.)

53. *Speeches of Henry lord Brougham upon questions relating to public rights, duties, and interests, with historical introductions, and a critical dissertation upon the eloquence of the ancients, in four volumes, Edin. (printed) A. and C. Black, Edin. Longmans, Ridgway, and Knight. Lond. 1838, 8o.

Vol. 4 has an index: new edit., 1845.

54. Strictures on a life of W. Wilberforce, by the rev. W. Wilberforce and the rev. S. W. by Thomas Clarkson, M.A.; with a correspondence between lord Brougham and Mr Clarkson...Lond. Longman, 1838 (edited by H. Crabb Robinson). See his Diary, &c., 1869, p. 152, vol. 3.

55. Dissertations on subjects of science, connected with natural theology, being the concluding volumes of the new edition of Paley's work, by Henry lord Brougham, F.R.S., and member of the National Institute of France, in two volumes. Lond. C. Knight, 1839, 12o.

Inscribed to Thomas Lord Denman.

56. Analytical view of Sir Isaac Newton's Principia, by Henry lord Brougham...and E. J. Routh...Lond. Longmans; C. Knight. Edin. Black...1855, 8o, xxxi. 442.

This includes the second part of the third book, which was not in the edition of 1839. For criticisms, see "A Critical Dictionary of English Literature," &c., by S. Austin Allibone," p. 1418.

57. Historical account of the discovery of the composition of water. In the Edinburgh New Phil. Journal, xxvii., 1839, pp. 316-324.

Reprinted as appendix No. 1 of "Historical éloge of James Watt, by M. Arago, &c. Edin. 1839." See also the Edinburgh Review, lxx., 489.

58. Historical sketches of statesmen who flourished in the time of George III., to which is added remarks on party, and an appendix, first series, by Henry lord Brougham, F.R.S., member of the national institute of France. Lond. C. Knight and Co. 1839, r. 8o, ix. 404.

Inscribed to Mary Anne, baroness Brougham: on the last page is "end of vol. 1." Second series 1839, xiv. 334; on the last page is the word "Fnia," so that probably the next series was not then intended to be published. Third series, with remarks on the French revolution, 1843, r.

80, ix. 406 + 1, inscribed to M. Guizot. Each volume is embellished with numerous portraits by W. Holl, and other celebrated engravers.

At page 378 of the first series, Lord Brougham says that the Empress Catherine purchased D'Alembert's library. It was Diderot's (says J. R. in the Gent. Mag., July 1839, p. 37.), for which she paid him 100,000 livres, but left him the life-use of the books.

Paris. Baudry's European Library, &c., 1839, 80, 2d edition.

A new edition, corrected by the author, in Knight's weekly volume, 1845, 120, 6 vols., 9s.

A French translation was published at Lyons in 1847. See No. 61.

59. Inaugural addresses by Lords Rectors of the University of Glasgow... by John Barras Hay. Glasgow, 1839, r. 80.

Inaugural address delivered by Henry Brougham, esq., on Wednesday, April 6, 1825, begins at p. 41, and ends p. 70.

60. A letter on national education to the duke of Bedford, K.G., from lord Brougham. Edin. (printed) A. and C. Black. Lond. Longman, Ridgway, and Knight, 1839, 80, 48, 1s. 6d.
Edinburgh Review, LXX., 149.

61. Lord Brougham's answer to lord Londonderry's letter. Lond. Ridgway, 1839, 80, 15.

This is in reply to:—A letter to Lord Brougham and Vaux, by the Marquis of Londonderry [C. W. Vane], Lond., R. Bentley, 1839, 80, 58—relative to his character of Robert, 2d Marquess of Londonderry, brother of the above, in the Historical sketches of the statesmen of the time of George III.

62. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on tuesday, feb. 19, 1839, on moving for a committee of the whole house on the corn laws. Lond. Ridgway, Piccadilly, 1839, 80, 65.

Two editions same year.

63. Lord Brougham's speeches on the administration of justice in Ireland, with a preface. Lond. Ridgway, 1839, 80, xix. 32.

The speech is printed in double columns.

64. Lord Brougham's reply to lord John Russell's letter to the electors of Stroud, on the principles of the reform act, third edition. Lond. Ridgway, 1839, 80, 35.

Four editions the same year, dated from Grafton Street, May 4, 1839.

The Monthly Law Magazine and Political Review, which seldom lost an opportunity of saying the worst it could of Lord Brougham, as to this letter says, it "commences with the words 'Dear John Russell,'" and is subscribed Henry Brougham. This is as amusing (it says) as his describing himself in December 1834, in a tavern book at Calais, as "barrister et homme de lettres." (June 1839, p. 22).

65. A manual for Mechanics' Institutions, published under the superintendence of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge (by B. F. Duppa; with outlines of lectures on politics and political economy, by lord Brougham). Lond. Longman, 1839. 120, x. 322.

The "notice" is signed, "Brougham, chairman;" the introductory chapter "B. F. Duppa."

65. The speech of lord Brougham at the Dover festival on proposing the health of the duke of Wellington. London. Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., 1839, 80, 14.

66. An essay on female education...by the countess de Brunetiere Tallien, with a memoir [by and] of the authoress, [both] translated by lord Brougham; to be had at the authoress's residence, 6 James street, Westbourne terrace, Paddington [1840?]. 80, 75; and a French version of the essay, pp. 9 to 56.

67. The oration of Demosthenes upon the Crown, translated into English, with notes, and the Greek text, with various readings selected from Wolff, Taylor, Reiske, and others, by Henry lord Brougham...Lond. Knight and Co., 1840, 120, xxiii. 351, 10s. 6d.

The Times (March 21, 28 and April 3, 4), reviewed this work at great length, and the review was republished under the title of "A review of Lord Brougham's translation of the oration of Demosthenes on the Crown, reprinted from 'the Times' newspaper. Lond. Whittaker and Co., Ave Maria Lane, 1840, 120, 167."

"In conclusion" (says a correspondent of the Gentlemen's Magazine for March 1841, p. 265), "I again express my regret that he" (the reviewer of the Times) "should have abused his talent...in availing himself of the publication to attack most violently the character of its author, who has done so much for literature, and who is universally admitted to be one of the greatest men of the age."

69. *Under the superintendence of the Society for the diffusion of Useful Knowledge: Political philosophy—principles of government—monarchical government—Eastern monarchies—European monarchies. Lond. published by the Society and Chapman and Hall, 1842.

The pagination of part 1, vols 1 and 2, is continuous, the title page of vol. 2 occurs between pages 364-5, and the volumes are anonymous—1843, part 2 (xiv. 393) of aristocracy and government has Lord Brougham's name on the title page, as also has part 3 (pp. xviii. 189), "of Democracy—mixed monarchy," this last part has no index.¹

This work has been republished within the last year or two in three volumes, and so that each may be sold separately under the title of:—Brougham's Political Philosophy. Lond. Bell and Dalby [18-], 80.

¹ "Lord Campbell, in his posthumous 'Memoir of Lord Brougham,' asserts that the Useful knowledge Society was ruined utterly by the publication of Lord Brougham's 'Political Philosophy.' There is not a word of truth in the assertion. Yet Lord Campbell was a member of the committee of that Society; he had constant means of access to me, from whom he knew that he could have learnt the facts; but he preferred a sneer at Lord Brougham to the truth. And the sneer will probably be accepted hereafter as truth." Thos. Coates in Notes and Queries, 4th S. ix. 489.

70. Speeches by the lord Chancellor [Lyndhurst] lord Brougham, lord Cottertham, and lord Campbell in the house of Lords, on tuesday the 9th august 1842, at giving judgment in the appeal, the rev. John Ferguson and others—appellants, against the earl of Kinnoull and the rev. R. Young—respondents; with the judgment appended, from Mr Gurney's short-hand notes. Edin. James Gall and Son [1842], 8o, 56, 1s.

Lord Brougham's speech begins at p. 9, and ends at p. 33.

71. Letters on law reform to the right honourable Sir J. R. Graham, bart. M.P., secretary of state for the Home Department, from lord Brougham. Lond. J. Ridgway, and Tait, Edin. 1843, 8o, 87, 2s.

Second edition the same year; there are two letters, one headed "Criminal Code," the other "Law Reforms of 1843—spirit of Party." Reviewed in Law Mag. xxx. 257.

"Although this pamphlet bears upon its title page the words Law Reform, it will be seen at a glance that the subject was adopted only as a peg upon which to hang a self-vindictory, and it must be confessed, somewhat self-laudatory appeal from the verdict lately passed against him by the political press."

72. Lord Brougham's speech upon the Ashburton Treaty, delivered in the house of Lords on friday, 7th april 1843. Lond. Ridgway, Piccadilly, 1843, 8o, 70.

73. Dialogues on instinct, with analytical view of the researches on fossil osteology. Lond. C. Knight and Co. 1844, 12o.

Part of the series entitled, Knight's Weekly Volume. Originally published with and forming part of Lord Brougham's Dissertations...on Natural Theology, Lord Brougham translated the Latin quotations for this edition.

74. Speech of Lord Brougham upon the criminal code, in the house of Lords, on...13th may 1844. Lond. Ridgway, 1844, 8o 38.

75. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, on the law reform, may 19th, 1843. Lond. Ridgway, 1845, 8o, 4 + 34.

76. Lives of men of letters and science, who flourished in the time of George III. by Henry lord Brougham, F.R.S., member of the National Institute of France, and of the Academy of Naples, with portraits engraved on steel. Lond. Charles Knight and Co., 1845, royal octavo, xv. 516 and errata;—1846, vol. 2, xi. 516; with portraits, price two guineas; without portraits, one guinea.

The first volume contains Voltaire—Rousseau—Hume—Robertson—Black—Watt—Priestley—Cavendish—Davy—Simson. The second, Johnson—Adam Smith—Lavoisier—Gibbon—Sir Joseph Banks—D'Alembert. The portraits are engraved by Mollison, Hart, and others.

These volumes have no index. The first is inscribed "to Sir John Williams, one of the judges of the court of Queen's Bench, the second to Prince Albert.

This work was translated and published in French at Paris in 1847, and if I allowed myself to speculate in this list, I might say probably, it has been translated into other languages.

A review [by J. W. Croker] in the Quarterly Review, LXXVI. 62. For other reviews, not only of this, but of all Lord Brougham's best known publications, with critical quotations, see A Critical Dictionary of English Literature, by S. Austin Allibone. Lond, 1859-72.

"I have already referred to the admirable essay on Voltaire, which forms the first of the late Lord Brougham's 'Lives, &c.' No more liberal and discriminative appreciation of the literary labours of the great Frenchman exists; and the illustrious biographer records with equal fidelity the noble and generous deeds which the philosopher loved to perform." William Bates, in Notes and Queries, 4th S. II., 89.

77. Voltaire et Rousseau, par Henry lord Brougham....Ouvrage accompagné de lettres entièrement inédites de Voltaire, d'Helvetius, de Hume et orné de deux portraits gravés sur acier. Paris, librairie D'Amyot, éditeur. 6 Rue de la Paix, 1845, 80, xi. 353.

The portraits of Voltaire and Rousseau are engraved by Mollison and Hart, with English inscriptions, and published by Charles Knight. This translation is inscribed to Lord Howden.

78. Two discourses on the objects, pleasures, and advantages, I. of science; II. of political science, by Henry lord Brougham. Lond. Charles Knight and Co., 1846, 120, 197; has an index.

Originally published as the introductory treatise to the Library of Useful Knowledge. I believe this has been translated into Italian.

79. Letter to lord Lyndhurst, from lord Brougham, on criminal police and national education. Lond. Ridgway, 1847, 80, 4 + 42.

The second edition, same year, has a postscript.

80. Lord Brougham's speech on the close of the session of Parliament, 1847. Lond. Ridgway, 1847, 80, 24.

81. Speeches of...Erskine...with a prefatory memoir, by the right honourable lord Brougham, collected by the late James Ridgway, in four volumes. Lond. James Ridgway, 1847, royal 80.

The memoir by Lord Brougham forms pp. ix. to xxii.

82. Inaugural addresses delivered by Lords Rectors of the University of Glasgow...Brougham...Edin. (printed by R Hardie & Co.) 1848, 80.

83. Letter to the marquess of Lansdowne, K.G., lord president of the council, on the late revolution in France, by lord Brougham, F.R.S., member of the National Institute of France, fourth edition (with additions). Lond. J. Ridgway, 1848, 80. xvi. 165.

Fifth edition, 1849. Reviewed in Law Review, ix. 208.

84. Speech...in the house of Lords on Italian and French affairs... april 11, 1848. Lond. 1848, 80.

85. Speech of lord Brougham in the house of lords, on friday, may 12, 1848, on legislation and the law. Lond. Ridgway, 1848, 8o, viii. 80.

86. Speech of lord Brougham in the house of Lords, august 18th, 1848, on the affairs of Austria and Italy. (ibid.) 1848, 8o, 28.

87. Letter from lord Brougham to Sir James Graham, on the making and digesting of the law. Lond. Ridgway, 1849, 8o, 42, 1s.

Second edition the same year.

This pamphlet, says the Law Magazine, xlii. p. 288, is one of the very best things he ever wrote. It is at once just and bitter, sedate and caustic, vengeful and judicial, free from flights, and full of vigour, it has more than the characteristic acumen of Lord Brougham's restless and powerful mind. "One of the most important events of the quarter (Nov. 1849) is the celebrated and energetic letter...upon the absurd manner in which bills are passed in Parliament, and complaining in particular of the treatment which the Bankrupt Act received from the house of Commons last session." Ibid. 325.

88. Lord Brougham's speech on foreign affairs, in the house of Lords, on friday, 20th july 1849. Lond. Ridgway, 1849, 8vo, vii. 45.

89. Speech of the right honourable lord Brougham, in the house of Lords, on monday, may 7th, 1849, on the Navigation laws. Lond. J. Ridgway, 1849, 8o, 54.

The speech ends at p. 48. At p. 49 an appendix begins of quotations from Lord Brougham's "Colonial policy," the late Lord Durham's views, and Earl Grey's advocacy, &c., and the reader is informed that "these extracts are not added by Lord Brougham, who has only corrected his own speech at the request of the Ship Owners' Committee."

90. Recherches experimentales et analytiques sur la lumière [1853], Paris Comptes Rendus xxx. 1850, pp. 43-47, xxxvi. 1853, pp. 691-694. Paris, Acad. Sci. Mém., xxvii. (pte. 2), pp. 123-152.

91. Experiments and observations upon properties of light. Philosophical transactions, 1850, pp. 235-260. Sur divers phénomènes de diffraction ou d'inflexion. Paris, Comptes Rendus, xxxiv. 1852, pp. 127-129.

Further experiments on light. Royal Society's Proceedings, vi. 1852, pp. 172-174.

Further experiments and observations on the properties of light. Ibid. vi. 1853, pp. 312-415.

92. Inaugural address on the establishment of a law school, by lord Brougham, delivered as president of the Society for promoting the amendment of the law, at the rooms of the society, 21 Regent street, on july 3, 1850. Printed in the Law Review for august 1850, vol. 12, pp. 217-245.

Inaugural address on the establishment of a law school, by lord Brougham, with a letter from lord chancellor Truro. [Lond.] Stevens and Norton, 26 Bell Yard, and Ridgway [1850], 8s, 32.

No title page. "Delivered as president of the Society for promoting the amendment of the law, at the rooms of the society, 21 Regent Street, on July 3, 1850."

93. A letter to lord Denman from lord Brougham, upon the legislation of 1850, as regards the amendment of the law. Lond. Ridgway, 1850, 8s, 70.

Reviewed in the Law Review, vol. xiii. pp. 143-163.

94. Recherches expérimentales et analytiques sur la lumière [1853]. Paris, Comptes Rendus, xxx. 1850, pp. 43-47; xxxvi. 1853, pp. 691-694. Paris, Acad. Sci. Mém. xxvii. (pte. 2), pp. 123-152.

95. Parties witnesses, speech of lord Brougham in the house of Lords, friday, 11th april 1851, on law of evidence bill. Lond. Ridgway, 1851, 8s, 24.

96. Law reforms of the next session; extract of a letter to lord Denman from lord Brougham, dated 16th august 1852.

Printed by permission in the Law Review, November 1852, 8s, vol. xvii pages 138 to 150.

97. * History of England and France under the house of Lancaster, with an introductory view of the early reformation. Lond. John Murray, Albemarle Street, 1852, 8s, xiv. 473, 15s.

This history was published anonymously in the month of January. The preface says, "Nearly the whole of this work was written a considerable time ago. It is indeed above five years since the first portion of it was printed."

98. History of England and France under the house of Lancaster, with an introductory view of the early reformation, by Henry lord Brougham, D.C.L. OX., LL.D., F.R.S., member of the National Institute of France, and of the Royal Academy of Naples, chancellor of the University of Edinburgh, new edition. Lond. Griffin, Bohn, and Co., Stationer's Hall Court, 1861, 8s, xiv. 473.

This seems to be the first edition, with the addition of portraits, including one of Lord Brougham, a new preface, and a different title page.

Originally "published without any name, from the author's dislike of coming before the public when his duties did not require it." See p. viii. of the preface, which is dated from Château Eleanor-Louise, Feb. 1861.

The Law Magazine and Review (for 1861, xi. 203) says, the preface "mentions one curious fact, that the work was published anonymously many years ago. Its success, therefore, did not arise from the prestige which the name of the noble author would have attached to it, had he announced himself as the author."

99. * Life of the duke of Wellington, with lord Brougham's oration, delivered at Dover, oct. 1839. Lond. T. Nelson and Sons, and Edin. 1852, 16s, 196 + 7.

The seven pages of the oration at the end are separately paged, and appear to be from a different press.

100. Wellington orations—the speeches delivered on the 30th aug. 1839...at Dover, and on 13th nov. 1852, in the house of Lords; by—with a brief introduction by W. Hazlitt...Lond. Charles Westerton, 20 St George's place [1852], 8o, 12.

101. Law reform prospects; extract of a letter from lord Brougham to lord Denman.

Printed in the Law Review, Nov. 1853; 8o, vol. xix. pp. 144 to 159.

102. Lord Brougham's speeches in the house of Lords, 26th and 28th of july 1853, on County courts and law amendment. Lond. Ridgway, 1853, 8o, 47.

103. Copyright and patents; or, property in thought: being an investigation of the principles of legal science...with their bearing on the case of Jeffreys v. Boosey...in a letter to the right honourable lord Brougham and Vaux, to which is appended a correct report of the judgment delivered by the Lord Chancellor, lord Brougham, and lord St Leonards, by Montague R. Levenson, attorney and solicitor [with this motto] "The just is the expedient." Lond. Wildy and Sons, 1854, 12o, vii. 54, a table, lxii. 2s. 6d.

104. Extract of [a] letter from lord Brougham to lord Denman [on law reform], dated 10th sept. 1854, and printed by authority, though after lord Denman's death, in the Law Review, nov. 1854, 8o, vol. xxi. pp. 64-81.

105. Lord Brougham's speech on criminal law procedure—house of Lords, 28d march 1855. Lond. J. Ridgway, 1855, 8o, 38, 1s.

106. Lord Brougham's speech upon the slave trade, house of Lords, 26th June 1855. Lond. Ridgway, 1855, 8o, 10, 1s.

Upon his presenting the Barbadoes petition, a copy of which is given at p. 9

107. Religious liberty bill. Lord Brougham's speech in the house of Lords, july 27, 1855, with the bill, schedules, and notes. Lond. Ridgway, 1855, 8o, 46.

108. Works of Henry lord Brougham, in eleven volumes. Lond. and Glasgow. R. Griffin and Co., 1855-1861, 8o.

The above is the half title. The title of the first volume is "Lives of the philosophers of the time of George III." Vol. ii. Lives of men of letters of the time of Geo. III. Vols. iii., iv., and v., Historical sketches of statesmen who flourished in the time of Geo. III. Vol. vi. 1856, Natural theology. Vol. vii. 1856, Rhetorical and literary dissertations and addresses. Vol. viii. 1857, Historical and political dissertations. Vols. ix. and x. Speeches on social and political subjects, with historical introductions: on military flogging, Queen Caroline, libel on the Durham clergy, &c., imprisonment for debt, bed-chamber question, Wellington speeches. Vol. xi. 1861, The British Constitution. Each volume or set of volumes has an index, and separate title page and pagination, and is complete in itself, but there is no general index, and no index at all to the last volume.

109. Contributions to the Edinburgh Review, by Henry lord Brougham, F.R.S., member of the National Institute of France, and of the Royal Academy of Naples, in three volumes. Lond. and Glasgow. R. Griffin and Co., 1856, 8s.

This work does not comprise the whole of Lord Brougham's numerous articles, but only selections. As we have before mentioned (see No. 2), Lord Brougham has enumerated his contributions to the first few numbers of this renowned Review. It is doubtful whether a complete list will ever be made out, though it is said Lord Cockburn had a made-up copy (Notes and Queries, 4th S. viii. p. 111.)

For the last five years I have been collecting the materials for an essay, entitled "Lord Brougham and Literature, shewing all the publications written by, to, and about him," from which I have extracted this chronological list. During this time I have never allowed the mention of any article by Lord Brougham to pass me without taking a note of it, and I have already the nucleus for a list of his contributions, extending probably over a period of upwards of 30 years.¹ Many things which are still a matter of doubt and dispute, will most likely never be solved, as for instance the long vexed question whether he was the author of the article on Lord Byron's first poem, "Hours of Idleness," in the January number of the Edinburgh Review for 1808, and which brought forth Lord Byron's celebrated reply, the "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers."²

The question has been much discussed in Notes and Queries, to whose pages literary students must always be indebted for facts and information.

It is to be regretted that Lord Brougham does not throw the least light on these matters in his Life and Times; he neither acknowledges nor repudiates, he simply ignores nearly the whole of his literary life.

110. Lord Brougham's speech on life peerages, feb. 1856. Lond. Ridgway, 1856.

I cannot vouch for the existence of this speech as a separate publication, as I have never seen it. The title is taken from an advertisement.

111. Literary addresses...second series revised...by the authors. Lond. and Glasgow. Griffin, 1855, 12s. (Lord Brougham's address to the Manchester Mechanics' Institution, forms pp. 158 to 186.) Speeches of Eminent British statesmen, during the thirty-nine years' peace. Lond. 1857.

Lord Brougham's speech on the emancipation of the negro apprentices, 1838, forms pp. 83 to 129 of this volume. The above form two of a "Second series" of four volumes bearing the general title:—British Eloquence of the XIXth century.

112. Lord Brougham's Acts and Bills, from 1811 to the present time, now first collected and arranged, with an analytical review,

² Lord Cockburn says the "English Bards" wastes its fiercest and most contemptuous bitterness on Jeffrey, whom he (Lord Byron) believed to have been the author of the offensive article. But he was wrong in his opinion, for it was written by a different person (N. and Q. ibid.) In the "Recollections of Samuel Rogers" (1856, p. 236), we are told that Lord Byron "Being at last assured that the celebrated critique on his early poems in the Edinburgh Review was written by Lord Brougham, 'If ever I return to England, Brougham shall hear from me.' He added, 'That critique cost me three bottles of claret.'"

115. The student's handbook of modern history...edited by Samuel Neil...with a sketch of the French revolution, by Henry lord Brougham, F.R.S. Lond. and Glasgow. R. Griffin and Co. 1857, 8o.

The "Sketch," precedes the "History," and occupies the first seventy-four pages. It was republished in Historical Essays and Dissertations, by Sir John Stoddart, Colonel Procter, Lord Brougham, Professor Creasy. Lond. and Glasgow. R. Griffin and Co. [1859], 8o. Each essay is separately paged, and Lord Brougham's Remarks on the French Revolution forms seventy-four pages. I believe the "Remarks" were first printed in the Historical sketches (see No. 58), in this list.

Lord Brougham, in Paley's Natural Theology, had already written on this subject, which was somewhat a favourite one with him. "I also took much interest in the working of bees, more especially as regards the mathematical perfection of the structure of their cells, uniting strength with the greatest economy of materials, and satisfying every condition of a difficult geometrical problem. The speculations and investigations which this subject led me to pursue, did as much to cure me as the healthy air of Westmoreland." Life and Times, II. 291.

This was translated into French by Alexandre Pelf, and published at Paris the same year. See Catalogue général de la librairie Française, par Otto Lorenz. Paris, 1867.

126. Lord Brougham's law reforms, comprising the Acts and Bills introduced or carried by him through the legislature since 1811, with an analytical review of them, by Sir John E. Eardley-Wilmot, bart. Lond. Longman, 1860, small 8o, xxiii. 251.

It will be found to contain a list of no less than forty statutes, which he has initiated and carried through parliament, besides upwards of fifty bills introduced by him at various periods. Preface. It is an abridgement of the Acts and Bills published in 1857. See number 112.

127. Tracts, mathematical and physical, by Henry lord Brougham, LL.D., F.R.S., Chancellor of the University of Edinburgh, member of the National Institute of France and Royal Academy of Naples. Lond. (printed) and Glasgow, R. Griffin and Co., 1860, 8o, xii. 304.

The preface says: These tracts were written at different times between 1796 and 1858. The first was inserted in the Philosophical Transactions, with two other papers on light omitted in this collection. These three belong to the years 1794, 5, 6, and 7, when the author was a student at the University, under Professors Playfair and Robinson.

128. Address at the opening of the National Association of Social Science at Dublin, on wednesday, aug. 14, 1861, with notes, by the right honourable lord Brougham : from the transactions of the Association. Lond. John Murray. 1861, 8o, 30.

129. Our exemplars, poor and rich ; or, biographical sketches of men and women who have by an extraordinary use of their opportunities benefitted their fellow-creatures, edited by Matthew Davenport Hill, pastor of Birmingham ; with a preface, by lord Brougham. Lond. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, 1861 [1860], 8o.

Lord Brougham's preface occupies pp. vii. to xiii.

130. The circle of the sciences: a cyclopædia...with an introductory discourse of the objects, pleasures, and advantages of science, by Henry lord Brougham, edited by James Wild...The Lond. print. and pub. Coy., limited...London and New York [1862], 4o.

The introductory discourse forms pp. iii. to xxviii.

131. The life, letters, and speeches of lord Plunket, by his grandson the hon. David Plunket; with an introductory preface, by lord Brougham, in two volumes. Lond. Smith, Elder, and Co., 1867, 8o.

Lord Brougham's preface occupies pp., 1 to 24.

132. The life and times of Henry lord Brougham, written by himself, in three volumes. William Blackwood and Sons, Edinburgh and London, 1871, royal octavo, vol i. vii 552. A second edition of this volume was published the same year, vol ii. xii 516. Vol. iii. xii, 524.

The first volume has a portrait of the author from a painting by Sir Thomas Lawrence, and a lithograph letter at p. 536 of the Hon. Alex. Robertson, 1716.

Each volume has a table of contents, but there is no index, an omission which, for a big book, not expensive to get up, and commanding an enormous sale, is inexcusable. Lord Brougham left instructions to his brother to publish his life as he wrote it, which injunction has been scrupulously obeyed.

It is not surprising, considering the venerable age at which Lord Brougham commenced this autobiography, that a few errors and misstatements should occur. It has been pointed out that the tale entitled "Memnon," which Lord Brougham prints at p. 58 of the first volume as his own composition at the age of thirteen, is really a translation from Voltaire.

Lord Stanhope pointed out (in the Times of 12th June 1871) that the letter on p. 155 of the second volume, attributed to George III., was really written by his grandfather George II., and has often been published, and will be found in Coxe's Life of Sir Robert Walpole, i. 543.

The anecdote relative to driving a nail into the coffin of Lady Nightingale at Westminster Abbey, which Lord Brougham relates (at p. 205) as if his father was one of the actors, has been shewn (by Mr J. A. Picton, N. & Q. 4 S. vii. 277) not to have been possible, as his father was not born until several years after the death of that lady.

Mr Wyndham Smith, son of the Rev. Sydney Smith, points out in the Times of 3d July 1871, that Lord Brougham is mistaken when he states (ii. 483) that he gave the Rev. S. Smith a prebend in St Paul's—it was Lord Grey who gave it.

Lord Lyttleton has also in Notes and Queries, 4th S. viii. 311, 445, directed attention to a curious mistake. The sentence "from motives," &c. ii. 458, should be erased, as it belongs to another letter written to Earl Grey on Sept. 1, 1827, given in same vol. pp. 468-9.

133. Letters from lord Brougham to William Forsyth, esq., Q.C., LL.D., late fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, not published. Lond. printed by Bradbury, Evans, & Co., 1872, 120, 176.

"The letters are not remarkable in themselves, but are very characteristic of the diversity of attainments, untiring activity of mind, and kindliness of heart for which Lord Brougham was distinguished. Some fac-similes are given, and are not exaggerated specimens of the extraordinary hand which Lord Brougham ordinarily wrote." Notes and Queries (4th S. ix.)

The following is from the Eclectic Review for september 1868 :—
 "Few will remember that multitudes in England in 1812 believed that to him the peace and commerce of England were indebted for their salvation in an hour of great peril, and that by efforts he put forth not in combination with any political party. Few will be at all aware of the floods of pamphlets poured from the press against him as question after question emerged, and especially in his intrepid endeavours to correct the enormous abuses of the charities of England; on the other hand, few will know that for these, and such like exertions, the...Review proved him to be at one time an Ahitophel, and at another and later period employed its pages for the purpose of running a parallel between his character and that of judge Jefferies in his judicial career."
